- Be with you in court while you are waiting to give evidence.
- Inform the prosecutor of any special needs you have.
- Tell you about welfare, health, counselling and legal services available to victims of crime.
- Tell you about financial assistance available under the Northern Territory Victims of Crime Act.
- Tell you how to claim witness expenses.
- Help you prepare a Victim Impact Statement.

The Charter

In the Northern Territory there is a Charter for Victims of Crime. The Charter covers many areas of concern to victims of crime. You can expect police officers, government employees and court staff to treat you with courtesy, respect and dignity.

You can ask about

- The progress of the investigation. The police officer, prosecutor or Witness Assistance Service however cannot tell you anything that would put the investigation at risk.
- Charges laid against the accused person and any later change to the charges.
- Whether bail has been granted and any bail conditions.
- The reason why the plea of guilty to a lesser charge was accepted from the offender.

- The reason why charges did not go ahead.
- The place, time and date when the case is to go to court.
- Victim Impact Statements.
- The result of the case and any sentence imposed.
- Any property of yours held by the DPP.

Your protection

It is important that you tell the police if you have any concerns about your safety.

When an application for bail is being decided by the police or the court, any need for protection for you and your family will be considered.

Unless it is necessary your address or other personal details will not be disclosed to any person without your consent.

If you do not want your address given out in court it is important that you tell the police or the DPP.

Interpreters

Interpreters help people who have difficulty with English.

The Witness Assistance Service can arrange an interpreter for you.
